BERGDOLL, DRAFT DODGER, TO RETURN

LEGION'S TERMS FOR SURRENDER ARE ACCEPTED—WILL SERVE HIS SENTENCE.

PICKS S.H.P. ON WHICH TO SAIL

Veterans' Invitation Explained As "Stand for Law and Order"—"To Make Clean Breast."

New York—Grove Cleveland Bergdoll, convicted during the war as a draft evader, has agreed to return to America to serve his sentence in a federal prison. It has been announced here by Norman Hapgood. Bergdoll will return at the invitation of the American Legion, which, through John Quinn, national commander, issued a statement, declaring the legion had been accused of attempting to kidnap Bergdoll and it was time "to show the world" that the organization stood for "law and order."

The legion's offer was made by Leighton H. Blood, a member of the organization who said he went to Germany to carry out a plan mapped out by Garland W. Powell, national director of the legion's Americanism commission and Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant.

Blood said he was violating no confidence in giving a summary of the terms to Bergdoll.

"Bergdoll must come back. He must serve his sentence. The American Legion is not so much interested in Bergdoll as in the men who helped him escape from America. Let's bring Bergdoll back and have him make a clean breast and tell who the enemies in our own camp are. Then let him do his bit in prison. After that give him his money and let him go his way."

Mr. Hapgood said Bergdoll had sold his automobiles and other property in Germany and even selected the ship on which he wished to return to America.

Bergdoll has earned the appellation of "America's most notorious draft evader."

Every move he made to evade army service added to his notoriety and to his daring there was a cunning that took him safely beyond the reach of the United States government.

He reached that security through his sensational escape from two army guards on May 21, 1920. He was on his way from his mother's home in Philadelphia, and had stopped on his way to the hills of Maryland, where he was supposed to have hidden a pot of gold—$125,000—which he desired to deposit in a bank for safety, and for interest.

When he escaped Bergdoll was nominally at the army station at Governor's Island where he was awaiting appeal from his conviction.

ONE-TERM PLAN IS SPURNED

Resolution to Limit President to Four Years Loses By 70 to 4.

Washington—Senate advocates of a one-term for presidents have received a double defeat in that body. A resolution by Senator Willis, Ohio, that future executives be limited to a single term of four years was defeated 70 to 4, and an effort by Senator Harris, Georgia, to make the term six years was lost later 45 to 10.

The resolutions were offered as amendments to a joint resolution by Senator Norris, Nebraska, proposing a constitutional amendment which would eliminate "short sessions" of congress by convening that body in January after elections.

Several senators opposing the one-term proposals explained they did so to prevent that issue being confused with the purpose of Senator Norris' resolution and indicated they might support the plans of either Senator Harris or Senator Willis under different circumstances.

Other opponents, however, such as Senator Robinson, of Arkansas and Senator Wadsworth, New York, declared the limitation upon the president's terms would be an error unless the terms of senators and representatives also were altered.

OPPOSES LAKE DIVERSION PLAN

Form Groups to Protect Waters From Encroachment of Chicago.

Washington—A determined fight over proposed diversion of water from Lake Michigan as a part of Chicago's sewage disposal program, has been forecast as the house rivers and harbor committee began hearings.

Representative Voigt, Wisconsin, appearing at the request of Attorney General Ekern, of Wisconsin, said that the opponents could be classified in five groups—the Great Lakes Harbor association, the attorneys general of at least five states bordering the Great Lakes, the Association of Drainage Districts of Illinois, and Canadian Interurban.

Representative W. E. Hull, urged favorable action on his bill for diversion of Lake Michigan water at Chicago at a rate of 10,000 cubic feet per second and a nine-foot channel from Chicago to the Mississippi by way of the Illinois river to enable farmers to save 10 cents a bushel on grain shipped to market.

There are 18 teams entered in class "C" which comprise the best in Northern Michigan, so the local high school basketballers will have to fight hard in order to win the right to take part in the state championship tournament to be held in East Lansing this year. Five men of the squad will play their last game under G. H. S. colors—Capt. McPhee, Landsberg, Smith, Ingalls and Lagrow. Matson, Isenbauer and Robertson complete the team.

TO BANQUET BASKET BALL TEAMS

B. OF T. TO GIVE COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET.

Coach Little of U. of M. To Be Principal Speaker.

Grayling Basket Ball teams have had a fine season, in so far as their playing is concerned, and have afforded the home people with a lot of pleasure. They have gone out to other towns and come home with victories and in fact have been a fine credit to Grayling.

Therefore, in recognition of their success and in order to show the teams that the home people appreciate their efforts and are proud of them, the Board of Trade is sponsoring a banquet in their honor to be given Monday evening, March 24th.

Complimentary tickets will be sent to each player on the teams, which include the High school boys and girls teams and the Independents. All members of the Board of Trade are invited to be present with their ladies. Banquet tickets will be $1.00 each.

The committee in charge have been fortunate in securing the promise of Coach Little of the University of Michigan foot ball team, to be present at that time and to give a talk on some subject appropriate to the occasion. This is the first time Grayling has been privileged to have Coach Little here and his visit is looked forward to with great interest. He had been the first assistant to Coach Yost for many years and since the former has retired as coach, Mr. Little will succeed him.

Music will be furnished by Schram's orchestra, during the banquet. All Board of Trade members and their ladies are requested to attend the banquet. Get your tickets early at either drug store. Show our athletic teams that the old town is always back of them.

REV. KJOLHEDE'S 80TH BIRTHDAY

Members of Church Make Merry at Danebod Hall in Honor of Event.

Last Sunday, March 16th Rev. Kjolhede, who has been pastor of the Danish-Lutheran church of Grayling since November, 1908 celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary and in honor of the occasion the members of his congregation gathered at Danebod hall.

The assembly room of Danebod hall was turned into a reception parlor for the affair, with easy chairs and floor lamps strewn about. Soon after the arrival of the guests at the hall, they all joined in singing a number of songs, that were dedicated to Rev. Kjolhede, and whose verses were filled with words of tribute to their beloved pastor. One was written by Mrs. Kjolhede, one by J. H. Coole and another by a Mr. Bovbjerg, a friend of Rev. Kjolhede. After the songs Rev. D. Rodholm of Askov, Minn., who came to be present at the affair gave an interesting discourse. Among local people who also spoke were J. W. Sorenson and Mr. Cook. Following the talks, congratulatory telegrams, numbering 24 and letters numbering 70 were read. One letter came from the First Bishop of the Danish-Lutheran church of Denmark. Among the letters the following was one of the most interesting coming from a former pupil. It is as follows:

Latimer, Iowa, March 15, 24.

P. Kjolhede, Pastor.

Grayling Mich.

My dear Friend and Pastor:

In looking through the columns of the papers one frequently passes so hurriedly thru their contents that a few moments later it would be difficult to recall any part of their contents or subject matter. This might also apply to our personal surroundings and the acquaintances that we meet while the fleeting years are passing swiftly by; perhaps after a score of years we can point to but a single experience, or a single person that cannot escape our memory, or our admiration. It is now more than twenty years ago since I was with you almost daily in your school for young people at Newell, Iowa. I made friends there that I will never forget, and the work conducted there under your supervision could not help but leave its lasting impression. I was then too much a boy, to really understand the real purpose of your work, but have since come to think that perhaps it was an effort to show us a higher and nobler way of living as the young people go out to meet the stern duties of life.

I want to say here that I am truly grateful for the things you did for me at that time. You perhaps do not even remember distinctly who I am; I do not expect that. You meet so many in your work that a passing acquaintance can easily escape one's memory. But when I saw your picture in the church paper today and that you were about to pass your eightieth milestone I felt as though I would like to shake your hand and shake it like you used to tell us how. I have never forgotten that. As I cannot do that, I do want to send you my best wishes on this anniversary and wish you continued health and happiness so that you may fully enjoy the fruits of your labors that have reached out so many years.

To serve so long, must have its reward.

Yours respectfully,

Ove A. Johnson.

At five o'clock 160 people enjoyed a delicious lunch in the dining room of the hall. Strewn on the long tables were foliage and down the centers were tulips fashioned of crepe paper with here and there a candlestick decorated with red crepe paper to form a tulip and holding a lighted candle. In the centermost part of one long table was a beautiful birthday cake holding 80 candles, near which Rev. Kjolhede was seated. A most delicious lunch was served by a number of the ladies. After lunch the people went again to the assembly room where an enjoyable evening was spent. Several present gave short talks and songs were sung and a social evening enjoyed. Rev. Kjolhede received a purse of money from the members of the congregation and also a beautiful picture of Christ, which came from a church in Denmark.

Rev. Kjolhede, who has been pastor of the local church since 1908, is the oldest minister in the Danish ministry of the United States. He came to America in 1880 and for the past 25 years has been the ordaining minister of the Danish Lutheran churches of the United States, and at present is the president of the United Danish church societies. On his 70th birthday, he was given a like celebration by the members of the local congregation. He is admired and beloved by all his congregation, old and young, and is held in high regard by all the people of Grayling.

The AVA LANCHE joins in wishing Rev. Kjolhede many happy returns of the day.

Care of Hides.

Only sound hides free from cuts on the flesh side, well taken off, of regular even pattern, properly salted and cured, can command a high price and make good leather. Greater care must be taken in summer than in winter in salting, curing and marketing hides, especially by the farmer or the country butcher who has only an occasional hide to cure. Partly decayed hides are practically useless.

To the Public

Pursuant to action taken by the Village Board of Health, the same being of record under date of March 15th, 1924, where-in it becomes the responsibility of that Board to provide suitable preventive measures to attempt to control the spread of the present epidemic of Scarlet Fever or any other dangerous communicable diseases, without extreme measures of quarantine being established.

Therefore, I, C. A. Canfield, President of the Village of Grayling, under the authority in me vested by virtue of law, and in pursuance of action adopted by the said Village Board of Health, do hereby declare that as a means of such prevention every person is requested and urged to report to their physician any and all illness occurring in their respective families, and further that parents so desiring may keep their children from school attendance if in their judgment they believe that their children should not attend.

Providing, that all such absences, for whatever reason, will be investigated by the Health Board of the Village and where it is found that children are being kept from school attendance for any reason, such children shall be kept within the confines of their respective premises and shall not be allowed on the public streets or in any of the public places of the Village.

Providing further that the cooperation of all residents is herewith requested directing that inevent the latter provision is not observed a more strict quarantine measure will be placed in effect under the authority in this Board vested by provision of law.

C. A. CANFIELD,

President of the Village of Grayling, ex-officio Board of Health, of said Village.

FR. BOSLER OT LEAVE GRAYLING

REV. FR. JOSEPH CULLIGAN OF ALVERNO TO BE NEW PASTOR OF ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Rev. Fr. A. O. Bosler, who has been pastor of St. Mary's church for the past two and one-half years received word last Friday that he had been transferred to St. Michael's church at Remus, Michigan. It came as a surprise to Rev. Bosler, who was unaware that a change was to be made at this time. Fr. Bosler came to Grayling from Byron Center, taking the place of Rev. E. J. Walters, who took the pastorate of the church at Byron Center. During his short time here he has done much good work in the parish.

Soon after coming to Grayling he made it possible for a week's mission to be held and the people were treated to sermons by an excellent missionary priest. He also has spent much time in instructing the children of the parish. One of the vital things that he has put a great deal of stress upon was instructing the children in their religion. For that purpose he held a session each Saturday morning. He had high ideals and was a fine speaker.

Besides the affairs of his church Fr. Bosler has entered into civic affairs with much enthusiasm. He was a member of the Grayling Board of Trade and a real booster for Grayling. Fr. Bosler is reluctant to leave Grayling. He says he likes the people of our community and they in return hold him in the highest esteem. Besides St. Mary's church he has also had charge of St. Leo's church, Fredric, and St. Michael's church, Roscommon, where also he was well liked.

When it was learned that Fr. Bosler was to leave Grayling many were the words of regret spoken. He was liked by everyone who knew him. Monday evening, a reception was tendered Fr. Bosler at the parish house, by the members of the church. Many attended to bid farewell to their beloved pastor. As a gift he was presented with a purse, and nice refreshments were served by several of the ladies.

Fr. Bosler's successor, Rev. Culligan comes to Grayling from Alverno, Mich., where he has been pastor of St. Francis' church. He will arrive the last of the week and will hold services next Sunday at St. Mary's church. Fr. Culligan was educated in Montreal, and is very proficient in the French language. As there are a number of old French families in the parish his coming will be welcomed by them.

WHAT OUR PUBLIC NURSING DEPARTMENT IS DOING.

By Margaret A. Squires.

The work is just now becoming interesting as the really constructive plan develops. I had hoped in December to have finished the Frederic school and started weighing etc., here, but the time required in visiting suspicious diphtheria and scarlet fever cases and putting on the beginning of a campaign against diphtheria prevented that, so in January I started where I had hoped to start in December and the progress was made it was slower than I had hoped, for much time was required inspecting throats. Many children were sent home with notes. At the beginning of February this epidemic seemed broken and with assistance of ladies in weighing and measuring I have made some progress in the constructive work in spite still having many little interruptions and work with the hot lunch.

The grades now are all finished with regular inspection, and a nutrition class organized in every grade above the Kindergarten (numbering in all pupils 89 which meet every Friday during the gym period 15 minutes).

The posture cases which are perhaps potential mal-nutrition cases numbering 50 meet me on Thursday a. m. during the gym period, 15 minutes. The reason for this time is, that logically, exercise is less beneficial any way to muscles lacking tone, therefore I have taken the gym period as interfering less with the school work than any other thing and logically fitting in here. The period is very short but by pausing carefully we get it over fairly well. The reason for selecting Friday was that always on Friday, and usually on Thursday, I can turn over the hot lunch work to the Domestic Science department. Therefore Thursday for the posture classes also.

Speaking of organization the Junior Red Cross is running well now by itself but of course it was necessary for me to introduce Mrs. Gilson to the rooms. Right here I would like to mention the splendid co-operation I receive from the Junior Red Cross and Domestic Science and Physical training departments. Mrs. Gilson carries on at every opportunity the health rules and "brush your teeth" campaign. Miss Sprague has done fully as much, if not more than I of the hot lunch work. I see to procuring supplies and help plan lunch (according to my cash on hand) help what I can with cooking and always during the noon hour; also see that the children eat all their food—waste none. Miss Sprague has little time but manages to get things on to cook between times in her sewing classes. She only has cooking classes on Thursdays and Fridays and these do not come at convenient hours. However she prepares much of the food after school for the next day.

Miss Curtis being in the same room keeps in close touch with my work and assists with the posture work. In the posture classes I try to make the children desire a good straight strong body and then check up on their health habits. As soon as they have no counts against them, I graduate them to Miss Curtis who will give them special attention in the gymnasium. I have just graduated one such class.

Differing from January, February has had only one case for bedside care—that was a school girl to whom I made one call at night and another in the morning.

One correction has been made, a tonsilotomy of a very retarded child—her appearance and hearing are very much improved now.

Thru the contact of the hot lunches I believe I have now succeeded in getting one family that I really did think were hopeless, where perhaps I may make real headway in improving them they have gained in weight five pounds at least, and are cleaner for the present at least, less conceited. They are all retarded but that is no wonder considering the home and food and self satisfaction. Many talks with the children have been necessary and notes to the mother also supervision and correction—and as yet the work only begun.

Interesting notes have been received from mothers, and several mothers have been in to see me. One tells the cause of her son's mal-nutrition is too much sugar. Another says I have taught her boy to like vegetables, another that I have taught hers to drink milk rather than to want it. One little girl told me how she surprised her mother by being willing to eat vegetables.

As I have gotten into the upper grades I am meeting the cigarette problem. That is one thing Mr. Smith wished me to attack last fall but I have not been able to get the contact and I have not gotten them all yet, and I do not know how soon I may. The thing cannot be forced, I have to bide my time.

I have a definite plan of work but daily, weekly and monthly little matters come up that make it necessary to set it aside more or less from time to time but by the end of June I hope to be able to show results. No one can be more impatient to see results than I am but, pulling up the plant and examining the roots won't help to get the fruit consequently I must be patient even tho the harvest is delayed, and I shall have to beg the public to be patient also.

It seems wise to take time now to explain to the whole community what my plan of work is. I am sorry they have not been able to follow month by month what I am trying to do. I am held responsible from central division for the health program, also for the Junior Red Cross and Roll Call work also I am not supposed to do either. I am supposed to co-operate and assist. I am held responsible by the Child Welfare Bureau of the department of Health at Lansing for the health education of the community, for working out a growing developing program, beginning with the school children and including the correction of defect, and implanting of health habits and health development and education in health development, education in health in every way.

The putting on of health plays—stories and all the modern methods—hot lunches, milk in school, nutrition classes, little mother's leagues, mothers' meetings, child welfare instruction, prenatal instruction, and clinics of various sorts and the running of a Health Center. Again I am not supposed to do all of this myself but organize it and cooperate and supervise as is necessary. They do not expect me to put this all over in a day or a month or a year. Each year as the State plan progresses and changes my plans are expected to develop with it and reach always farther. There are always interruptions that cannot be avoided but they must not side track the plan even tho they delay its progress.

Therefore the while I am examining the school children and trying to teach them health habits I am also planning the development of the various other lines.

The school work is progressing very satisfactorily except for its slowness due to necessary interruptions.

Weighing and measuring alone is of practically little importance. There are other signs of mal-nutrition of more importance than being below weight. That may be only temporary. The value of the histories of previous years is to compare with the present and see if the child continues under weight from year to year. Knowing that is useless unless we find out why. The child that was underweight last year may be normal or over weight now. Malnutrition has only been taken into serious consideration within the last two years.

The old reports had space for recording underweight the next issue—posture. Now there is a separate space to report each of these. What is the meaning of malnutrition? It is not a disease at all. It is a condition. What is the cause? Its causes are various. One child has diseased tonsils, another teeth, another eats candy between meals or does not eat vegetables or will not drink milk, or runs too much, or works too hard, or eats too much pastry or eats irregularly, or sleeps with windows shut or simply eats too little.

The cause of too little food or wrong kind of food is not poverty it is ignorance or indulgence. Ignorance of this matter does not mean an ignorant person generally. Two years ago I was ignorant of most of this, when I had learned about it I attacked underweight from a very different angle. Instead of simply urging them to drink more milk I asked each child a series of questions and instructed them according to the answers.

The questions are as follows:
What time do you go to bed?
What time do you get up?
What do you eat for breakfast?
What do you eat for dinner?
What do you eat for supper?
Do you eat candy between meals?
Do you sleep with windows open?
Some of the answers usually give the key to the trouble.

The child's menu and a history of activities for 48 hours always shows the cause unless it is a physical defect in which case it is for a physician to find the cause.

Dr. Rose of Michigan Health Department told me to pay less attention to the weight, and more to general appearance of the child. Dr. Emerson enumerates the causes of malnutrition. Primary causes:

1. Physical defects.
2. Lack of home control.

3. Over fatigue.
  4. Insufficient food and faulty food habits.
  5. Faulty health habits.
- Secondary causes:
Poverty—2 per cent.
Heredit—2 per cent.
Tbc.—3 per cent.
Syph.—3 per cent.

In order to correct the primary conditions we must have the cooperation of the parents and I am trying to get them to come to the school and see the classes. Then by comparing notes with each other and comparing the children's reports and charts they can see the gains. The charts are good looking and the children like to see who can make the most gain. They like to get the gold star. Children will do a great deal because it is the style.

The child's own interest is one of the important things in developing health. School conditions, home conditions, medical care are all necessary. If the parents do not come to the school it will be necessary to make home visits or send notes.

To show what we learn in the nutrition class. I will give a few stories. Total 600 c. for day.

ies. One child brought a menu that read thus:

Breakfast—One big cookie.

Dinner—Dish of vegetables and cup of cocoa.

Supper—Piece of cabbage and cream. Two small spoons of jello and whipped cream. Two cookies.

GRAYLING LOSES

TO BLACK ROCKS

BUFFALO FIVE DEFEATS LOCALS 26 TO 21 SATURDAY.

The Grayling Independents basketball team lost its second game of the season Saturday night when the fast Buffalo Black Rocks quintet took the measure of the locals 26 to 21. The Grayling five defeated the Rocks over a week ago 25 to 24 in an overtime game.

The Saturday night game was fast and furious throughout, each team playing high-grade basketball. The team work of the Grayling five was not up to usual standard, several times during the game the locals being handicapped by hard luck in basket shooting. The Rocks were the best team showing on the local floor this season. Allen with six field goals, was the bright light in the Buffalo five's offense. Johnson was the high point getter for the local quintet with four field goals. The largest crowd of the season witnessed the game.

Score end of first half—Black Rocks, 12; Grayling 8. Final score—Black Rocks, 26; Grayling 21. Scoring field baskets—Allen, 6; Peck 2; Hingtes, 2; Allinger, Burt, Johnson, 4; Reynolds 3; Milnes, 2; Crane Goals following fouls—Peck 0 in 2; Allen 1 in 3; Burt 1 in 3; Reynolds 1 in 2; Crane 0 in 2. Will Your Family Be Happy This Spring?

Will Your Family Be Happy This Spring?

If yours is one of the few remaining families lacking an automobile, no doubt you have finally decided to get one within the next four months.

A low-priced modern automobile like the Chevrolet has become indispensable to the family of ordinary income. A million other families can easily prove to you that the better way is with Chevrolet. The beauties of nature, the interesting and educational features of other places and ways of living, remain things to read about or seen dimly in cold photographs until you are free to get to them at your convenience and pleasure.

But, suppose you have definitely decided to buy a Chevrolet this spring. This does not necessarily mean you are going to get it. Anyone posted on conditions in the automobile business will tell you that thousands of families are going to be unable to get cars this spring. This has been true almost every spring for the last ten years. There are just two ways of making sure of getting your Chevrolet for use when the flowers and balmy breezes of spring lure you to the country roads—buy it now or order it now.

If you do not want to pay for it in full at this time, any Chevrolet dealer will arrange terms to suit your convenience. You will be surprised to learn how easy it is to pay for a Chevrolet and use it while you are paying for it.

Please realize these statements are made by us in good faith and we mean just what we say about the possible difficulties of getting a car delivered to you this spring if you wait until then to order it. The only way to be sure of a Chevrolet this Spring is to order it NOW.

Oldest Artificial Leg Found in Tomb at Capua

The oldest artificial leg in existence is that in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. It was found in a tomb at Capua, and is, of course, of Roman origin.

This artificial member accurately represents the form of the human leg. It is made with pieces of thin bronze, fastened by bronze nails to a wooden core. Two iron bars, having holes at their free ends, are attached to the upper extremity of the bronze; a quadrilateral piece of iron found near the position of the foot is thought to have given strength to it. There is no trace of the foot, and the wooden core had nearly crumbled away. The skeleton had its right leg surrounded by a belt of sheet bronze edged with small rivets, probably used to fasten a leather lining. Three painted vessels lay at the feet of the skeleton. The vessels belong to a rather advanced period in the decline of art, about 800 B. C.

Painting the Lily

German inventors have developed a process which has moved aluminum from the class of solely utilitarian purposes to that of use in the arts. The process is one by which coats of nickel, gold, silver or copper can be deposited upon aluminum by electricity—hitherto an impossibility. The metal's utilitarian value also has been enhanced through the invention, as it can be made usable now for marine purposes, the outer coating making it impervious to action by salt water.

Why Pay the Penalty of Lying Awake?

MANY people spend hours at night, restlessly tossing from side to side, waiting for sleep. All because they drink coffee with their evening meal.

If the caffeine in coffee irritates your nervous system and keeps you awake when you should be asleep, recuperating your energies, why not stop coffee and drink Postum?

Postum is a pure cereal beverage, absolutely free from caffeine or anything that can disturb health and comfort. Many prefer Postum for its delightful aroma and flavor.

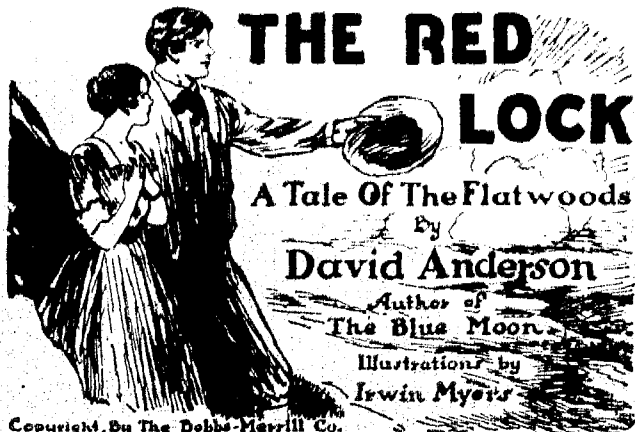

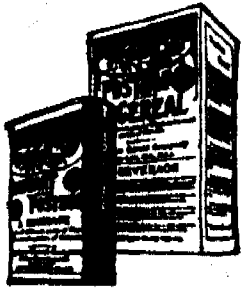

If you want to know the truth, change to Postum for a month or so, and see how much better you will sleep and feel.

Postum

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: instant Postum (in tin) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

In the driveway down the yard the girl handed Brownie's rein to her father and ran into the house. When she returned a moment later, she had on a short riding skirt, and was buckling around her waist as she walked the holster of a small and very fancy revolver.

The preacher allowed his eyes to stray over the trim figure and rest on the weapon.

"A present from—Jack," the girl answered to his look at the same time dropping her fingers to the next holster—"he trapped him 't' g't the money."

"Do they—girls, I mean—carry such things in the Flatwoods?"

"Sometimes—y'u see, Jack, and I ride 't'gether, and shoot target 's' much—"

"Why, I have one of those things—"

"Have y'u—bring it along and we'll shoot target."

The preacher handed Rex's bridle rein to her and hurried into the house. The old banker, grinning toward his daughter at the eccentric dominie's mining step, suddenly seemed to remember something, tapped the breast pocket of his faded coat; drew out the formidable letter addressed to Jack Warhope and handed it to the girl, with the request that she deliver it at the first handy opportunity.

Wondering, the girl looked at the letter and put it away in her blouse. Just as the preacher returned carrying in one hand the very dependable-looking ivory-handled six-gun that had thudded against the bottom of the skiff on the day of the sealing trip. In the other hand he held a very serviceable holster, with its pouch for powder flask, bullets and caps hanging from the belt.

"I bought them just before setting out on my journey for the—West," he explained.

The girl took the beautiful weapon, fully loaded and freshly capped, and looked at it admiringly, while the old banker bent over her shoulder.

"W'y, this gun's be'n shot—a lot," she said, lifting the hammer a trifle and slowly revolving the cylinder.

The preacher dropped a quick look at the weapon.

"Gun," he repeated, with a mite of hesitation that escaped the others—"Is that what you call them? The man who sold it to me called it a revolver. I do wonder if he sold me a second-hand one."

The old banker laughed—raspy, raucous.

"Cheated a-plenty," parson. This Dolly Varden cannon o' y'oun's has seen service, 'r I ain't no judge of six-guns."

"Do you mean that it will not shoot?" the preacher asked in anxious tones.

"Lord, no!" the banker returned—"It would drop a man in 's tracks, but they cheated y'u if they sold it to y'u 'r new."

Texte handed the weapon back to its owner. He thrust it awkwardly into the holster and stood fumbling the belt, wrong side out, around his waist. The girl laughed, showed him how to buckle it on under the sonner frock coat, and sprang to the saddle, with an ease and grace that lifted his spectators' eyes.

After two or three unsuccessful attempts he finally succeeded in scrambling bling to Rex's back and followed her down the drive, where the old banker already had the gate open.

"W'y, This Gun's Be'n Shot a Lot," She Said.

Just through the gate the girl fell suddenly thoughtful.

"Wait—I'll be back in a minute," she said and touching Brownie with the whip dashed away on the River road. A moment later under the big elm by the barn-lot gate at the Warhope homestead, she drew rein. While Brownie stood prancing, still a little resentful at the touch of the whip, the girl's head lifted, her throat and lips tightened, and the clear call of a king cardinal made the great elm nod.

A big man with a mighty spread of shoulder at work in the cattle pens, lifted his head and listened. Next moment Jack Warhope appeared around the corner of a shed, vaulted the fence and came striding down the barn lot.

"Texte! W'y—"

He opened the gate and came out into the road. The girl smiled upon him curiously; fumbled in her blouse; drew out the letter in the formidable manila envelope and handed it to him. He took it; gazed at it, and then looked up at the girl.

"Not to be opened until his twenty-first birthday," he read—"what d' y'u s'pose Pap Simon's up to now?"

"That's what I be'n wonderin'," was the thoughtful answer, "but I reckon we'll have 't' wait till—"

"Six more days," he finished, as the girl tightened the reins and pulled Brownie's mouth up from the grass.

"How d' y'u like 't' go ridin'?"

"Me?"

"The dimples flashed at him. 'Mr. Hopkins wants 't' go.' 'Hopkins?'"

He shrugged his great shoulders and glanced down the road where the preacher sat on his horse awkwardly in front of the red-roofed cottage.

"Jack—"

He turned back to her; waited for her to go on.

"Be nice to 'im. He knows 's' much, and he was good 't' pore—Ken—"

He bent his head in respect for the minor note. The soft purr of the elm twigs came out faintly clear on the drowsy day; the girl sat drawing the cracker of the riding whip up and down between the stirrup and the toe of her shapely small shoe.

"Texte—"

He had looked up; the girl turned her eyes toward him.

"Don't let this—man git no hold on y'u. He ain't no man fr—y'u. His ways ain't—our ways—"

The girl lifted her face and laughed—a trifle uneasily.

"Jack, you're always so—serious. Hurry up and git Graylock."

"How d' y'u know I'm goin'?"

"Ain't y'u?"

He smoothed the mane on Brownie's neck; half turned toward the gate.

"I am if he is."

"Bring y'r 'r'olver—we're goin' 't' target shoot."

He wheeled back, for the first time he seemed to notice the holster at her waist.

"I 'low I will," he muttered.

CHAPTER XIII

A Face at the Smudged Window.

Aunt Liza happened to have "drapped a stitch" in her knitting and had stepped to the window the better to see to "pick it up" when the three riders came up the Eagle Hollow road. She looked up carelessly from her tedious task, but grew instantly attentive with the first glance.

"Come 'ere, Nick—ain't that Big Jack an' Texte an' the new parson?"

"Well, I'll be dern'd," grunted the old man, coming to the window and looking out, his pipe poised between his fingers—"what d' y'u think o' that?"

"What I think's a-plenty," the primly positive old woman snorted, "out gallantin' around like that, with two beaux a-trailin' after 'em—an' that preacher in the Flatwoods barly long enough 't' git 's chair warm. I use'n 't' think right smart o' Texte, but I can't swaller no sich carryin'-on as she's a-havin' with the new parson. He ain't never be'n reglar installed, nohow, an' if he keeps on like this, 'e won't be."

"Texte Colin may live 't' rue the day she draps a fine lad like Big Jack an' takes up with a teetotal furriner, jist 'b'cayse 'e happens 't' be gallantin' 'em full o' p'layer."

"Aw, I dunno," the old man interrupted, turning away from the window as the three riders disappeared behind a bend in the road a little above the house, "jist 'b'cayse she happens 't' go out ridin' with 'im, him ain't no sign she's a-goin' 't' take up with 'im."

"That's jist your way," Aunt Liza retorted, still standing at the window and fussing with the snarled knitting, "alw'ys tryin' 't' smother things over fr' everybody. Did you look how 'e set 's hoss, 'longside o' Big Jack?—huh—I wonder the second best hoss in the Flatwoods would put up with sich ridin'." I knowed that preacher wouldn't do 't' tie to the minute 'e lit. Hain't no sense in a preacher bein' that good-lookin', nohow—now there's the business of it, I-beeminy."

Aunt Liza's grim lips twisted into an acid silence. She bent again over the "drapped stitch"; "picked it up" at last and came back to her rocking chair.

The old man, doubtless glad to rest after his long tramp in the woods that morning, sat with his pipe dangling between his fingers and tapping his chair, his head bent toward, pondering the three-angled drama—the eternal triangle—at that moment being staged within the narrow valley.

The click of the busy knitting needles, the muffled tapping of the pipe, fell at length into a sort of rhythm, which, with the tick of the dull-faced clock on the mantel-shelf, seemed to enhance the silence rather than disturb it, and to bring out the peace and repose of the room.

Meanwhile, the three riders leisurely followed the eccentric windings of the Eagle Hollow road. Seen through the tangle of vine and bush and tree in teasing glimpses on their left, the erratic little stream that inflated on the road its many turnings, sparkled by in the sunlight. On their right, across a picturesque rail fence, rose the wooded bluffs that led to the uplands of the Warhope homestead.

Cleared only to the width of a wagon, so narrow that the bordering bushes sometimes raked their stirrups, the road itself was a thing to leave the wood fairies. It lay for the most part in chequered shade, the feet of the horses playing almost constantly among a delicate tracery of leaf and branch and stem, flung down by the sun in dancing patches upon the grassy track. The great trees of the bluffs reached their giant arms over it and hovered it in grateful shade, while cliff and scar unwound their successive pictures as the three rode along.

More than a mile up the hollow the road passed under the far-flung branches of an immense oak, towering so high above its fellows that the preacher, reined in Rex and exclaimed: "Grand! Magnificent! Surely its fellow is not to be found in the forest!"

"Eagle Oak," the girl observed, reining up Brownie by the side of the taller horse, "the king of the Flatwoods."

"It belongs to the homestead," she went on. "The line runs right along here at the base of the bluff—that's the line-fence there. Black Rock and Eagle Oak, they're both on the homestead. Jack's—father had the original patent, 'r whatever they call it, made out 't' his grandfather, and signed by General Andrew Jackson himself. They say—"

The woodsman sidged in his saddle; glanced around at her from under the edges of his eyes. She caught the look and paused.

"Ah, it must be fine to have such a holding as that," the preacher commented. "I confess to some such longings myself, sometimes."

The remark not seeming to call for an answer, the girl merely shook the reins on Brownie's neck and they rode on—out from the shade of the great oak; up the narrow ribbon of road, with the picturesque broken valley unfolding its wonders; the preacher constantly reminded of something he had seen in the Alps, or elsewhere in his travels, and overdoing with effusive exclamations punctuated with a laugh so loud and blarey that it fairly made his horse shy.

The preacher's laugh was the most strikingly odd expression of his strikingly odd personality—a sort of hand-groined laugh that did not seem to come into existence naturally; a kind of sarcastic exclamation point that exploded at untimely and most unexpected intervals in his conversation.

As they passed the spot where the sadly winsome face of the mountain girl had flared forth from the cove that morning and he had picked up Uncle Nick's trail, Jack Warhope, sitting his horse as only a man trained to the saddle can and riding for the most part in silence, darted a quick look into the bushes—a look that quite escaped the others.

The one girl and the two men—a combination of infinite possibilities—had reached the point where the road left the hollow and picked its way through the broken passes of the bluffs to the uplands, when the preacher stopped his horse and sat gazing up and across the narrow valley.

DIDN'T LIKE COMMON LABORER.

Dear Editor: "Not long ago the writer heard a man make this remark of a neighbor, Oh, he is a very good fellow if he is a common laborer. Why should one be termed just a common laborer?" Are we not all laborers, in one form or another, either high or low? In my opinion a man is a man or a gentleman is a gentleman no matter what position he may hold or how much or how little of this world's goods he may possess."

There is no doubt about the writer being correct in her opinion. What a man or woman may be doing for a livelihood has nothing to do with their being a lady or gentleman nor their character. Some of God's noblest characters have been persons doing common labor. Lincoln the rail splitter was a common laborer in every sense of the word, while he was splitting rails.

Thomas Edison is a skilled workman. He might be splitting wood on the back forty and would be doing common labor and if he followed that vocation for any period of time would be classed as a common laborer. Vocations are divided into classes—professional, business, skilled and common labor. Each of these divisions are sub-divided. There are many kinds of professions as we all know. The same is true of skilled and common labor. Persons are listed in directories according to their occupations and nothing is thought of classing a person as a common laborer.

However just because a person makes their living by doing common work, it does not make him or her any better nor any worse than others in that community. The unfortunate thing is that there are some people in every community who rate a person according to their occupation. A laborer to them is a person to be scorned. Isn't it awful! Ah, we pity the man or woman who hasn't had the rich privilege of bumping elbows with "Mamie and the Drain Man" in the Servants in the House. A disgruntled king was ordered to wear the shirt of a contented man but the only contented man the servants found in the kingdom was a ditch digger who was too poor to possess a shirt. "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown". Dishonesty, and debauchery are rife in high society and often reputations and not character mark the standards instead of character. Nobility is not confined to so called high places. Beneath the shirt of the most menial laborer is often found a noble heart.

Tuesday night of last week Grayling Independents lost to Cadillac "Y" at Cadillac 62-26.

It was Grayling's first defeat in ten starts and was due in a large measure to the exceedingly small court at Cadillac. Grayling has a fast and speedy attack but were unable to do anything in the line of team work.
Cadillac has a good fast team but no doubt would be lost on a regulation court.

A good team usually has a good following but this was not true at Cadillac for there were many more vacant seats than there were filled.

There is a demand right now in Grayling for modern homes. Even the people of moderate means want the comforts of such homes and they are entitled to them. This taking a bath in a wash tub is passe, just the same as oil lamps, mussy heating stoves, out-door toilets, etc. Landlords should put their property in fit shape. Tenants are willing to pay a fair price for homes that have the necessary comforts.

To keep a public health nurse in our county means quite a sum of money and as the taxpayers wish to know for what use their money is expended, it would be well for them to read Mrs. Squires' article on "What Our Public Nursing Department is Doing" on the first page of this issue.

Wilhelm Nelson, son of Wilhelm Nelson Sr., was united in marriage to Miss Dagmar Jensen at the Danish-Lutheran church, Tuesday evening by Rev. Kjolhede. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson attended the young couple. Following the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of the groom where a delicious wedding supper was served, just relatives being guests. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson will operate the Tony Nelson farm, formerly the Burton farm, expecting to move onto same soon.

George Patton complains that some of the young boys of the south side have been molesting him by calling him vile names whenever they see him on the streets. Also that last Saturday while his wife was on her way to town with a basket of eggs, she fell and before she could get up, several boys appeared and showered her with snowballs. Mr. Patton is 80 and his wife 88 years old. They are people who mind their own business and are trying to eak out a living, and dress very economically. We cannot conceive the mind of any young boy or girl who would be so low that peoples rights are not respected by them, and especially so when the objects of their devilishness are aged, such as are Mr. and Mrs. Patton.

The band concert and dance by the Citizens band at the school auditorium last Monday evening, St. Patrick's night was very much enjoyed. Altogether the crowd was not as large as ordinarily attends the band dances, there were many who bought tickets, who did not attend, so the financial success of the party was assured. The concert began at 8:00 and the many fine selections rendered were thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The concert lasted for one hour when the floor was cleared and Clark's orchestra took its place and dancing began.

Late in the evening lunch was announced, which was served by the ladies of the W. B. A. and many enjoyed this feature. The amount realized will help to buy a fine new instrument the Citizens band has contemplated buying.

Thomas Hogan of Atlanta, who has been receiving a series of treatments at Grayling Mercy Hospital for the past six weeks, expects to return to his home next week feeling very much improved.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

E. D. BAILEY
County Agricultural Agent

LIVESTOCK LEGUMES LIMESTONE MEAN PROFITS IN FARMING

Money-Making Idea Number 17. Start now on the $25 a week income that all Crawford County farmers can just as well have as not, by purchasing good seed, and purchasing them early, for the supply of good seed corn and good mammoth and June clover is very low.

Use the money-making idea! Here is a Hot One. County Agent E. S. Bird, of Kalkaska County, which joins us on the west, in doing the one thing told below, earned his salary for the year.

Kalkaska Bureau Blocks Sale of Dangerous Seed. Analysis Shows Condensed Stuff Loaded With Trouble.

Kalkaska, Mich., March 10.—The Kalkaska County Farm Bureau has just stopped distribution of 1,245 pounds of seed mixtures of low vitality and containing large quantities of noxious weeds. These seeds were of unknown origin and history and when you look over the state seed analyst's report below you will agree that the Kalkaska County Farm Bureau has given a great service to a number of its members and to the county's agriculture by being on the job to stop distribution of this low grade seed. Note that it runs from 18 to 30 per cent trash.

Samples of the several mixtures came to the attention of County Agent E. S. Bird, who, because of their suspicious character, sent them to the State Dept. of Agriculture Seed Laboratory at Lansing. The report was an iron-clad argument for buying only seed of known origin, adapted to Michigan conditions and of guaranteed high purity and germination. Charles A. Stahl, State seed analyst, reported on the Kalkaska samples as follows:

Samples No. 728. TIMOTHY AND RED CLOVER—69.08 per cent pure seed. 14.90 per cent inert matter. 16.02 per cent foreign seed. The pure seed contained 39.18 per cent timothy with a germination of 32 per cent, and 29.90 per cent red clover with a germination of 36.5 per cent. This mixture had in it 26 kinds of foreign seed with Canada thistle 1 in 3,500 seeds and wild carrot 1 in 90 seeds.

Sample No. 729. TIMOTHY, ALFALFA, RED CLOVER—74.32 per cent pure seed. 13.38 per cent inert matter. 12.30 per cent foreign seed. The pure seed consisted of 31.51 per cent timothy with a germination of 40 per cent, and 32.54 per cent red clover with a germination of 40 per cent and 10.27 per cent alfalfa with germination of 5.5 per cent. This mixture had in it 29 kinds of foreign seed with wild carrot 1 in 69 seeds and Canada thistle 1 in 3,500 seeds.

Sample No. 730. TIMOTHY, RED CLOVER, ALFALFA—72.49 per cent pure seed. 14.13 per cent inert matter. 13.38 per cent foreign seed. The pure seed contained 26.17 per cent timothy with a germination of 31 per cent, and 40.94 per cent red clover with germination 36 per cent, and 5.38 per cent alfalfa with germination 1 per cent.

This mixture had in it 30 kinds of foreign seed with doddler 1 in 3,500 seeds and wild carrot 1 in 61 seeds.

Sample No. 731. TIMOTHY AND ALSIKE CLOVER—81.43 per cent pure seed. 6.04 per cent inert matter. 12.53 per cent foreign seed. 22 kinds of foreign seed in this mixture. Timothy shows 71 per cent germination.

Consider what one wild carrot seed in 61 means. There are about 260,000 clover seeds to the pound. At the 1 to 61 rate that means 4,100 wild carrot seeds to the pound. If such seed were sown eight pounds to the acre, 32,800 wild carrot seeds would go into the ground.

Anyone who would get the above kind of seed would lose money if he had been paid for taking it. He would get not only failure, but trouble. Nothing can beat Michigan grown, genuine red clover or alsike, 99 per cent or better pure, high germination test and guaranteed in all these respects. That is the kind of seed your State Farm Bureau puts out. It is the Farm Bureau's answer to the kind of seed that Kalkaska County Farm Bureau found was being offered its farmers.

Some of us belong to management. If we do better than expected, we get 10% of the excess.

So every man among us does his best to make Studebaker cars supreme.

Our fine backing

Behind us is an honored name. For 72 years Studebaker has been the leader in quality and class.

We have $90,000,000 of assets. We have $50,000,000 in model plants. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. So Studebaker cars are built by modern and efficient methods.

We have an engineering department which costs $500,000 yearly. That to maintain and develop Studebaker standards.

We subject Studebaker cars to 30,000 inspections. That requires 1,200 men. All told over 70,000 machine and hand operations are performed in manufacture of a Studebaker car. In so many operations, though each one is small, there is a great opportunity for economies and savings.

We have a $10,000,000 body plant, to maintain the Studebaker standard of coach work. There sons, fathers and grandfathers are working together, to build such bodies as Studebaker always built.

Those bodies are finished by many operations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish.

The open bodies are upholstered

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

We give unusual equipment. On some Big-Six models, for instance, we include two nickel-plated bumpers, one or two extra disc wheels with cord tires, a courtesy light, a motometer, steel trunk, etc.

How we do this

We give you these extra values through quantity production. We build 150,000 cars per year—more than any other fine-car builder. Our large expenses are divided by that enormous output.

We do it by building our own bodies, our own parts. Thus we save outside profits.

We do it because we have up-to-date plants, with all forms of modern equipment.

The results are these: Beauty, quality and luxury such as no maker can surpass.

Prices far below the usual. Our Light-Six, built by ordinary methods, would sell for from $200 to $400 more. Our Big-Six can be compared only with the highest-priced cars in the world.

Here are 13 models, from $1,025 to $2,685. Each of them offers scores of advantages over any comparable car. They offer such values that the trend toward Studebakers has become overwhelming.

Go analyze the reasons before you buy a quality car.

See how Studebaker gained top place

145,167 people last year paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The sales have almost trebled in the past three years. Studebaker growth in fine cars is the marvel of this industry.

Go see the reasons. See the scores of extra values Studebaker offers.

There are 13 models. Prices start at $1,025. They go to the highest price a fine car needs to cost.

Don't buy a car for years to come without knowing how Studebaker gained its amazing popularity.

In real leather. The closed bodies in Chase Mohair. That is made from the silky fleece of Angora goats.

We pay for those extras—and others—out of savings. Building our own bodies saves you on some types up to $300 per car.

We never stint

The rule here is to give the utmost in every part and detail.

We have 35 formulas for steel. Each has been demonstrated best for its purpose. On some of these steels we pay 15% premium to get the formulas exact.
